Expected to be Ready

BULLETINS:

Paris, March 31.—Premier Lloyd George and President Wilson conferred privately for an hour this forenoon before the council of four met at the president's residence. It is understood that the purpose of the conference was to expedite the peace proceedings.

London, March 31.—There are foundations for rumors that the entente is opening fresh negotiations with Nicolai Lenin, the Bolshevik premier of Russia, said a press dispatch to the Daily News today.

Paris, March 31.—A "showdown" by the "big four" before the end of the present week was regarded as inevitable today.

President Wilson, Premier Lloyd George, Premier Clemenceau and Premier Orlando are not satisfied with the results of the first week's session.

It is known the president feels he cannot assume responsibility for all proposals from British, French and Italian sources and as a result is determined to demand that the peace conference put all its members on record on certain proposed measures.

The president would then be in a position to state the cause of the U. S. by a definite statement of the facts.

The re-drafted league of nations covenant is expected to be submitted to a plenary session of the peace conference within a week.

Amendments Help Much.
Amendments have been adopted which will go far in removing opposition in the U. S.

However, up to the present there has been no agreement upon the amendment protecting the Monroe doctrine. There is known to be some opposition to it.

It is feared in some quarters that if the president should press the policy of noninterference with the Monroe doctrine, a delicate situation might result.

Will Decide How Much Liquor Man Can Have

Ashtland, March 31.—The decision of the circuit judge Richard that the city here has authority to a dry town to designate the amount of liquor that a citizen may legally have in his possession, will be taken to the state supreme court, it was stated by attorneys today.

Judge Risjord heard the appeals of Joseph Halladay, Mike Davis and Adam Kizilewicz from the municipal court, in which court these men were found guilty of having more liquor in their possession than the city ordinance permits.

The defendants decided to carry the question up. It is regarded as having a bearing on the liquor ordinances in all Wisconsin cities.

Mother Wins; So Does Son-- And Education

(By HARRIETTE WHEATON)

A salary of $175 a month now. Some $80 or more than it might have been, all because mother had her way and was insistent upon it.

A mother and father from Switzerland were raising a family of several children in Janesville on $1.75 a day. The oldest son was ready to be graduated from the graded schools. Like all of his mates he felt quite ready to tackle the working world. His main ambition was to get a job. A payroll of even a few dollars loomed big to him. All his friends were quitting school.

Mother Far-Sighted.
But the mother, full of thrift, far-sightedness, ambition for her children and loyal to America's opportunities, kept her son in high school, though it meant privations at home, and it meant continual urging on to keep him at his studies. The son was graduated from Janesville high school. He stepped into a good position and is now earning $175 in engineering work.

"I never could have done it if not for the mathematics I learned in high school," he tells his mother, who is thoroughly grateful for her "just making him stick to it."

High School Crowded.
Janesville high school is crowded to overflowing. Classes recite in the attic, in the whitewashed basement, in the corridors, rows of seats in the sepiely run, and places were together in order to squeeze in an extra row or two.

The number of sons who will want to quit school and battle the world is increasing as Janesville fulfills its predicted growth. More high school room will be needed to give them a chance to earn a real living.

All the mothers as well as all the women of the city have the chance to provide seats for their sons and the city's sons in a new, modern, well equipped efficient high school.

Their ambition is the backbone of the education of all the children. Their ambition to have a proper school, will be evidenced by the way they turn out at the polls tomorrow.

The women have the privilege of voting on the high school bond issue. A simple mark on a ballot in the yes or no column will turn the tide the way the mother minds decree.

The residential requirements for voting are one year in the state, 10 days in the precinct. No advance registration is necessary.

U. S. DEMANDS MEXICO BARE JAP CONCESSIONS

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, March 31.—The American embassy at Mexico City was instructed today to make inquiries concerning the report that the Mexican government has granted large concessions to Japanese in Lower California and to report the facts as quickly as possible.

No official information has reached the department, but it is necessary to be kept informed of the situation by the dispatch from Mexico City yesterday quoting General Amado Aguirre, under Secretary of Development and Agriculture, as saying they had been granted.

The American government is interested both because of the apparent success of Japanese in obtaining a long sought foothold in Lower California, and because the tract of land involved was developed and is claimed by an American company whose rights were forfeited by the Mexican government in 1917.

WOMEN VOTERS TO DO THEIR UTMOST

Members of the Chamber of Commerce at their luncheon at the Myers hotel this noon were given distinctly to understand that if the school bond issue is defeated at tomorrow's election, it would not be the fault of the women voters.

Mrs. Abbie Helms when called upon by Charles A. Einslow, presiding officer, said that the women had done in organizing their forces to put the bond issue over.

"A lot of these men who think that they are going to kill the bond issue by voting against it are going to be fooled," said Mrs. Helms. "The women of the city know that we need a new high school and they are not going to stop and quarrel just because they cannot all agree on a site. We are going to vote for it."

Roger Cunningham briefly discussed both the school and good roads bond issues. He urged the members to back in the attempt to put Janesville in the foreground as a prosperous progressive city.

At O. Mout declared tomorrow was the day when Janesville either awakened to her opportunities or sank back into slumber.

Senator Whitehead impressed the audience with the statement that the building of a school was just the beginning of the many that had to be taken in the next few years.

Mrs. Starr Apwood assured the men that the women would do their share in making the bond issue a winner.

BANDIT TRIO RAID KENOSHA AND RACINE; GET $55,000 LOOT

(By Associated Press.)
Milwaukee, March 31.—A telephone message received here today to the effect that three robbers who cracked the safe of the American Brass company at Kenosha, Wis., last night, shot and killed Tony Pingatore, a policeman, of that city, and escaped with $50,000 in cash and Liberty bonds in an automobile, driving in the direction of Chicago.

Police from Kenosha started in pursuit of the safe-blowers in automobiles and a rifle squad from this city was sent early today to meet the robbers from the Wisconsin city.

The bandits commandeered an automobile and ordered the chauffeur to drive to a garage for a supply of gasoline. While waiting at the garage, a Policeman Pingatore came up and in a revolver fight he was killed.

The bandits then started south in the automobile.

12 Reasons Why You Should Vote For Bonds

1. Because this is your city, your home town.
2. Because the plans in the making for this city must be changed if the issue is beaten.
3. Because much of the effort put forth here has been useless if the bonds fail of passage.
4. Because the great concern that is making possible the greater Janesville believes proper school facilities necessary.
5. Because the vote on the issue will be an expression from Janesville as to our being ready or not to absorb what is being offered.
6. Because proper educational facilities must be here if we can even hope to keep the new workers and their families.
7. Because those that will come here will not stay if schools are not provided.
8. Because everybody agrees that we need a new high school site to progress we must forever forget that the river divides the city.
9. Because there is no west, east, north or south side. We are Janesville, all.
10. Because we are not voting on a site, but on the question "Are we to have a new high school?"
11. Because if Janesville is to secure the benefits now promised the vote must carry.

VOTE WILL REFLECT JANESVILLE'S GROWTH

"Bigger and Better Janesville" enthusiasts and boosters are the total number of male voters in the city this spring and from the figures see an accurate method in gauging the influx of population during the last year.

The ballot of April, 1917, on the local wet and dry question is being used as the basis of determining the city's growth, this to be held in connection with the largest total vote cast in the city on any one candidate on either the high school site or the county highway bond issue, the women's vote on the high school problem deducted.

While the "wets" kept Janesville in the anti-dry procession with a majority of 219 two years ago, the total number of voters in the city in 1917 was 3,013. Last year's total of 2,951 votes on local option was at first considered when some sage suddenly recalled that there had been a war in good one, which had been the case in 1918 figures could not be used with so many of the boys away. Instantly the mathematicians got the 1917 figures.

The contention is made that while the 1917 total will be matched against the big vote tomorrow the result will show the 1918-1919 growth as it is held that had it been held in connection with the ballot would have been recorded last April as usual.

NEW HIGHWAY BILL
TO STATE LEGISLATURE

(By FRED L. HOLMES)

Madison, March 31.—The big piece of highway legislation of the present session, which is the work of the Senate and Assembly committees on Highways, acting jointly, has been introduced into both houses.

The bill is in the form of amendments to the present State Trunk Highway act, and State Aid act. Its main provisions provide for the enlargement of the mileage of the State Trunk Highway System, amendments regarding bridge and culvert construction, highway maintenance, and the incorporation of new sections covering the protection of the official state highway markers and providing for the removal of signs which obscure the vision of travelers on the highways.

Under the terms of the amended act, the Wisconsin Highway Commission is empowered to increase the present State Trunk Highway system, which numbers 5,000 miles, in an amount not exceeding 2,500 miles, so that the total shall not exceed 7,500 miles, which is practically one-tenth of the total road mileage of the state.

The same procedure will be followed in laying out this additional mileage as was followed in laying out the original trunk highway system. The Wisconsin Highway Commission and a legislative State Trunk Highway Committee of five members to be appointed by the governor, will lay out the system after the usual public hearings.

In addition to laying out the additional mileage, the commission and the committee are authorized to alter or discontinue any part of the present State Trunk Highway System if it will result in an improvement in the system.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING.

The value of newspaper advertising becomes daily better appreciated. It has been thoroughly understood by live business men for many years. But as an agency for getting a message to the public, newspaper advertising has not—at least very recently—been appreciated at its true value outside the business world.

The newest covenant to the gospel of advertising is the Presbyterian church.
This great organization recently conducted a drive for a $40,000,000 fund
to be used in church work at home and abroad. The drive was a complete success, and much of the credit for this happy consummation is given to newspaper advertising. Now the Presbyterians are about to launch a membership drive and Dr. Charles Stelzel, one of the best living writers of newspaper advertisements. He says:
"There is no agency which can be made quite so effective as the daily newspaper in enlisting the interest of those who do not go to church."

"It already has an entree into the homes of the people; it is not loath-some; it is not suspicious; it appears every day; the matter is discussed by every one; and worth while advertisements, paid for by the church and proclaiming religion, will be read by many millions who would never,
in the first instance, go to a church to hear it discussed."

"If advertising has proved successful in getting the public to subscribe to a church fund it would be equally successful in getting it to subscribe to any other sort of fund—providing, of course, the subject were equally worthy. Indeed, the success of the four great Liberty bond drives and of the other nation-wide campaign for funds during the war was due in a large measure to newspaper advertising."

And if advertising will raise money
it will do numerous other things that it has not in the past been called upon to do. For instance, it will interest new church members for social fraternities; it will inform men and women on vital issues of the day and away their thought; it will further any legitimate propaganda.

As Dr. Stelzel says, the newspaper is read and discussed every day, not by a few but by everyone. It goes into every home and is read by every member of the family. No matter what your message may be, there is no other medium comparable to the newspaper if you wish to gain the attention of the general public.

PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHT.

On the eve of one of the most important elections held in Janesville for some time, prospects for the future are bright. Sentiment which for weeks has been considered against bonding the city for $60,000 to purchase a site already selected by the board of education has changed to a great extent over Sunday. Women who have children in school have awakened to the fallacy of allowing the bond issue to be defeated. They will not prevent a forward step which will assure their children comfort and safety while getting their education.
They are going to turn out tomorrow
and vote for the bond issue.

The men who have the vision to see that this issue is not merely to obtain the consent of the people to bond the city but that the future of Janesville will in a great measure depend upon the action taken on this question, are going to back their ballots in favor of the proposition.

Property owners who have seen their holdings increased in value in the last three months are not going to allow any backward step that will halt the prosperity which is knocking at our door to be taken.

Even the pupils at the high school have entered the campaign and are protesting against the conditions under which they are forced to prepare their lessons. They are keenly alert to the opportunity to take the first big step in progress, bound together with the idea of standing back of a necessary movement for a bigger and better
city, the bond issue should win.

It is necessary, however, for every man and woman who believe we should have a school, as soon as we can get it, to go to the polls tomorrow and cast a ballot for it.

There seems to be fear in the hearts of some of our gentler sex that soldiers returning from France will not and their American girls as interesting as the French women. It is claimed that our fighters have been broad-minded and changed since their participation in the war. They are not the only ones that have improved.
American girls have kept pace with their brothers through their efforts to do their share. They will not have to bow to the women of any nation.

A Sheboygan man mailed his questionnaire in a fire alarm box and had several days anxiety when the draft board did not receive it. It is safe to wager that some of those who had to make income tax returns wished they had mailed their questionnaires in some place where the revenue collector would not eventually get a sneak at it.

Janesville women will have their first opportunity tomorrow to not only decide whether their children will have modern and roomy quarters in which to obtain that most important foundation of their lives—structure—education—but they will have the chance to put the stamp of approval upon a bigger and better city, by voting for bonds to build a high school.

Dry headquarters in Superior is doing something constructive along the line of filling the gap left when the saloons were voted out. Instead of handing out a lot of argument, coffee and doughnuts, music and other forms of entertainment are dispensed in a building formerly occupied by a saloon.

Even the busy little bee is blamed for the high cost of living. A statement comes out of Darlington that the bee men lost money last summer because the "heavy" rains washed the honey-sweets from the flowers. Funny that never happened before. Is it propaganda to prepare us for higher money prices?

Not a single man or woman who is a qualified voter, should fail to cast a ballot in tomorrow's election. When the votes are counted, Janesville should know exactly what the future program should be. Fifthly, she will go ahead or settle back into the rut along which she has been jogging for years.

Just about the time we are thinking of the time when campaigns will be over for a time and we can take it easy, along comes the announcement that the press must get behind the Victory loan and the Victory gardens.
It is just one blamed campaign after another in an editor's life.

Now if the weather man will show that spirit of co-operation that many of our citizens are imbued with, the ring of the hammer and the buzz of the saw will be heard on heretofore vacant lots, and in a few weeks we will have our new homes will have a chance to set their tables and put up their beds.

A vote for good roads is a vote to keep the dollars, which are now being wasted, on the job of adding to the country's prosperity. A dollar will roll along on concrete than it will if it is stuck in the mud.

WHO'S WHO in the Day's News

WILLIAM M. HUGHES. Premier of Australia and chairman of the Australian delegation at the peace conference, stands out as the most aggressive and the most persistent opponent of President Wilson's policies. As the latter expounds them at the green table.

Premier Hughes' chief reason for antagonism to President Wilson is the latter's contention that the French, Belgium, Japan and the British self-governing colonies should be de-privated of the ownership of Germany's overseas possessions, which they captured, and that the right
of possession thereto should be vested in the League of Nations.

Hughes' forbears were Welsh, as indicated by his name, and was born in North Wales, emigrating when about 22 to Australia, where he may be said to have commenced his career as an itinerant schoolmaster.
Lately of the Dock Laborers and Waterside Workers' union and soon converted it from an inchoate, inarticulate agitation into a wonderful organized industrial force. It is only natural, therefore, that he should, in 1894, have been returned on the Labor ticket to the assembly of New South Wales as a member for Large Australia in the present commonwealth, he transferred his activities to the commonwealth parliament and became minister of external affairs in the late federal labor cabinet and finally prime minister.

Still on the sunny side of 60,
Hughes has a family of six children.
In spite of his diminutive size, infernal weight and chronic dyspepsia, he is devoted to outside exercise, such as rowing and cricket. He is credited with writing the very worst hand in Australia.

He has paid several visits to the United States, on the last occasion
a little less than a year ago.

High School News
High school students are taking an active interest in the result of the school bond issue at tomorrow's election. They have received much discussion around the school, and there promises to be lively doings if results are not successful. Throughout the past week there has also been much feeling between the Freshmen and the upper classmen, which also promises to develop into something interesting.
Graduation exercises will doubtless be without much pomp this year according to the arrangements now being made. It has been decided to follow the custom of the past few years and have the simple graduation exercises.

Girls basketball games are now being run off at the school. Each class has organized teams and are now playing on a full schedule of games.
The senior girls team is probably the strongest in the lot.

There will be a meeting of the "H. Y."
at the Y. M. C. A. building. Supper will be served and it is expected that some speaker will be present.

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

ROY K. MOULTON

A PRESSING NEED.

About three weeks ago
The tailor shop in our neighborhood
was robbed by burglars.
Who carried off numerous suits
Which had been left there
For pressing and repairing.
Later the burglars were caught
And the clothing recovered.
But the police took the clothing
To headquarters and are holding it
To be used as evidence.
When the burglars are tried.
Now it so happens that
Our little boy, aged six years,
Had a pair of trousers
In the tailorshop at the time
Being pressed.
Of course, they were stolen
And are now in headquarters.
They are small, but we might say
By—rather important.
At least to the little boy.
He has been staying in the house
For three weeks now
Waiting for his trousers.
And he wants to go to school.
And he can't go in his bathrobe.
And he is growing every day.
And we fear if the trial
Doesn't come off soon
He will have outgrown the pants.
So, if anything can be done—
Well, let it be done, that's all.

Two hundred tanks will be distributed among the large cities to use for advertising purposes during the Victory Loan campaign. The question is: Do you live in a tank town?

HABITS.

A habit that I like to note
Among the city's vamps;
Is when they sell, in gracious vein,
The new War Savings Stamps!

A pleasing thing I like to vamp

THE LITTLE OLD RED SCHOOL HOUSE.

The little old red school house is the cradle of our dreams.
The little old red school house
that we see from every train,
Standing bravely by the roadways,
By the hills and by the streams,
Is the birthplace of the splendours
and the joys we shall attain.

There the voice of Freedom whispers mighty secrets to our youth.
There the seeds of faith are planted in the brave and sturdy hearts.
There tomorrow's men and women,
by the shining light of truth,
Learn the majesty of service and the joy which it imparts.

The little old red school house, with the teacher at the door,
Is the bulwark of our glory and the guardian of our pride.
From the feet of grim invaders it shall long protect our shore,
And no vicious reign of terror in its presence can abide.

There all tyrants meet their downfall,
there the force of might is stayed.
There the hand of hate is withered,

News Notes from Movieland

By DAISY DEAN

This picture looks as if Fred Stone might be supporting Doug in his next picture, but he isn't. The two are only playing a little on the studio lot between scenes. With Stone's circus antics and Fairbanks' stunts everybody is kept interested and thrilled during "stage" waits.

Doug but recently started his new Arterial picture, "Something for Somebody," and from all accounts he gave it a fast beginning. Here is the opening stunt which puts the accompanying photograph to shame: He climbs out of the window of a speeding Pullman, continues up to the roof of the car, runs along the top of the train, jumps to the swinging arm of a water feeder and from there to the back of a horse. Nice, quiet little opening for a film, isn't it?

Fred Stone's next picture, which is scheduled for release soon, is a picture version of the stage play, "Johnny Get Your Gun." It is said the part of Johnny Higgins will not be before the screen's peculiar brand of comedy. Higgins is supposed to be a stunt man in a picture concern and an ex-compounder, and he probably does many thrills which even rival the opening of Doug's latest.

MRS. CASTLE WITH FAMOUS PLAYERS

According to Irene Castle, she is not engaged, she is not going to start a company of her own, she is not going to choose a new dancing partner, and she is not going to retire from the screen. According to the Famous Players-Lasky corporation, Mrs. Castle will appear soon in the screen version of Robert W. Chambers' popular story, "The Flaming Line." How long she will remain with the organization is not known. Mrs. Castle has just returned from England. During her stay there she appeared by command before the king and queen and at another time gave a performance at the welcome entertainment accorded Gen. Joffre when he visited London.

SCENARIO WRITER DIES. News of the death of Miss Mary Moore, sister of the famous Moore brothers, Tom, Matt, Owen and Joe, was received from France recently by relatives. Miss Moore was engaged in Red Cross work near Paris. She went abroad a year ago. She formerly was active in motion picture work and gained some note as a scenario writer.

Douglas Fairbanks and Fred Stone.

Allen Joyce has been hiding her light under a bushel. Here while she has been modestly saying she didn't have a talent other than her screen acting, she has been writing on the quiet. The new dramatist wrote her first for Frank Joyce, her brother, and it is a rousing sketch. From Pittsburgh comes a clipping from the Sheridan Square theater, saying:

"Frank Joyce and Flo Lewis. In an original comedy by Alice Joyce, the Vitaphone star."

"The Birth of a Race" the mammoth photoplay spectacle, was born in Chicago. At the Blackstone Theatre, this theatre is considered Chicago's classiest loop theatre and was never opened before for any motion picture. After a successful run at this house, the attraction was moved to the Playhouse, where success and patronage followed it. Owing to future bookings at both the above houses "The Birth of a Race" had to make room and go upon the road. This big photoplay spectacle comes to the Myers Theatre Sunday, Matinee and night, April 5th along with a big symphony orchestra of picked musicians.

WOLVES OF THE SEA

Copyright by A. C. McClurg & Co.
I had glimpse of the thick fog without as he pushed through the door, and of a scarcely distinguishable group of men on the deck. Those about me could only be located by their restless movements. I stepped down one stair conscious of increasing movement below, the meat cleaver still gripped in my hands.
"Any of you armed with cutlasses?"
"Oui, m'sieur, Ravel DeLasser."
"Stand here, to right of me, now another at my left. Who are you?"
"Jim Carter, sir."
"Good; now strike hard, lads, and you others be ready. The cabin is full of 'em, and it is your life and mine in the balance. If we can get away in this fog they'll never find us, but we've got to hold them here until the boats are ready. I killed their captain, Sanchez. That is where we've still got them, without a leader."
"But they've got arms?"
"Only hand weapons" broke in Carter. "There's a ball in the bandoliers, but no powder. I was going to break open a cask, but Estada put me at another job."
"Then that leaves us on even footing, lads, we ought to be equal to them with the cold steel."

CHAPTER XXIV.

In Clasp of the Sea.
The sounds of voices and of moving bodies were plainly discernible, but the darkness was too dense below to permit the eye perceiving what was taking place. The rattle of steel told me some among them had reached the arm rack. Then followed the crash of wood as though the butt of a gun had splintered a door panel. Then a voice pierced the babel. My mind gripped the meaning of it all; they had found a leader! They had released Manuel Estevez. Now the real fight was on! I could hear the fellow question those about him, seeking to learn the situation.
"Who have cutlasses? So many! a dozen form with me. Now bullies, they are on the stairs there, and that is the only way to the deck. Now then—to hell with 'em!"
We met them, point to point, our advantage the narrow staircase and the higher position; theirs the faint glimmer of light at our backs. The first rush was reckless and deadly, the infuriated devils not yet realizing what they faced, but counting on force of numbers to crush our defense. Manuel led them yelling encouragement, and sweeping his cutlass, gripped with both hands, in desperate effort to break through. DeLasser caught its point with his blade while my cleaver missing him with its sharp edge, nevertheless dealt the fellow a blow which buried him back into the arms of the man behind. I saw nothing else in detail, the faint light barely revealing indistinct figures and gleam of steel. It was a pandemonium of blows and yells, strange faces appearing and disappearing, as men leaped desperately at us up the steps, and we beat them remorselessly back. I saw nothing more of Manuel in the fray, but his shrill voice urged on his fellows. It was strike and parry, cut and thrust. Twice I kicked my legs free from hands that gripped me and DeLasser fell, a pike thrust through him. Who took his place I never knew, but a stout fighter the lad was, wielding his cutlass viciously, so that we held them, with dead men littering every step to the cabin deck.

But they were of a breed trained to such fighting, and the lash of Manuel's

The First Rush Was Reckless and Deadly.

The afterboat is alongside. There is such a fog, sir, you can't see two fathoms from the ship. The girl is in the boat, but LeVere ain't. The mate slipped out o' sight in the fog. He's somewhere aboard."
"Never mind him; the fellow can do no harm now. Move back slowly lads. Schmitt and I will be the last ones out at a distance."
We closed the companion door as silently as possible and for the moment there was no sound from within to show that our cautious withdrawal had been observed. I stared about, but was able to perceive little beyond the small group awaiting my orders. The fog clung thick and heavy on all sides, and it was impossible for the eye to penetrate to either rail. Fortunately there was no weight of sea running.
"There is nothing more to keep us aboard lads. Stow yourselves away and hang on; I'll wait here until you are all over."

They faded away into the mist, dim spectral figures, and I remained alone, listening, anxiously for some hostile sound from below. Satisfied that the lads were safely over the rail and the decks clear, I turned toward the ship's side. As I did so a yell reached my ears from the blackness below—the bounds had found voice.
I ran through the fog in the direction the others had disappeared, and had taken scarcely three steps when I collided against the form of a man, whose presence was not even noticed until we came together. Yet he must have been there expectant and ready, for a quick knife thrust slashed the front of my jacket, bringing a spurt of blood as the blade was jerked back. Even as my fingers gripped the uplifted wrist, ere he could strike the second time, I knew my antagonist. I knew also this was a fight to the death, to be terminated before that unguarded grew below could attain the deck. It was LeVere's life or mine, and in the balance the fate of those others in the waiting boat alongside. The knowledge gave me the strength and the ferocity of a tiger. I ripped the knife from his fingers, and we closed with bare hands, his voice uttering one croaking cry for help as I bore in on his windpipe. He was a snake, a cat, slipping out of my grasp as by some magic. At last I had him against the rail, the weight of us both so hard upon it that the stout wood broke, and we both went over, grappling until we splashed into the water below. The shock loosened my hold; as I fought a way back to the surface I was alone. My strength began to fail, hope left me as I sank deeper and deeper into the remorseless grip of the ocean. I was not afraid; my lips uttered no cry, no prayer—I drifted into total unconsciousness and went down.

CHAPTER XXV.

The Open Boat.
I came back to a consciousness of pain; unable at once to realize where I was, or feel any true sense of personality. Then slowly I comprehended that I rested in a boat, tossed about by a fairly heavy sea; that it was night and there were stars visible in the sky overhead. I stared at the vacant of thought, when a figure seemed to leap over me, and I caught the outline of a face, gazing eagerly down into my own. Instantly memory came back in a flash—this was not

Dinner Stories

"The Judge" gomme six months. You said "ou'd get me acquitted."
"I know, I did," admitted the lawyer. "And since I fell down on the promise, I'll agree to get you pardoned, or not."
"How long will that take?"
"About six months."
Personal beauty came up for discussion at a social gathering, when a little incident along that line was recalled by Senator William H. Thompson of Kansas.
One afternoon Smith and Jones were comparing war garden statistics over the backyard fence when a new resident, who had recently moved into the neighborhood happened to pass by at a distance.
"There goes that man Brown," remarked Smith, with an indicative nod of his head toward the stranger.
"What do you think of him by this time?"
"I don't know," replied Jones. "I haven't had occasion to give him much thought."
"I don't know whether he appeals to me or not," returned Smith. "Does he look to you like a man who is two-faced?"
"Well, I should say not," was the sympathetic declaration of Jones. "If he was he wouldn't wear the one he does."

The "pass-it-around" method of military communication frequently led to amusing results. An officer at the end of the British line told the nearest private to pass the word along to another officer at a distance. "We are going to advance. Can you send us reinforcements?"
And this is the message the other officer received: "We are going to have a dance. Can you send us three or four couples?"

Tales of the Friendly Forest

As soon as Uncle Lucky and Billy Bunny came to Miss Goose, Ted Housey they hitched the Lucky-mobile to a tree and went inside—not the tree, you know, but the Tea House.
"I'm so glad to see you," said pretty Miss Goose, who had on a little lace sunbunner and a string of pearls around her slim white throat. And then she took the two little rabbits into the dining room and handed them the bill of fare.
Well, the first thing Billy Bunny wanted was carrot ice cream, but the old gentleman rabbit said no. "We must eat something solid first." And he ordered some lettuce sandwiches and turnip sticks. And when this was eaten the little rabbit got his carrot ice cream.
And while Uncle Lucky was sitting on the porch after supper smoking his cabbage leaf cigar and Billy Bunny was eating a lemon jellypop Mrs. Moon came up in the sky and made the road almost as bright as day.

"We won't have any trouble getting home," said Uncle Lucky, throwing away his half-smoked cigar and hopping into the Lucky-mobile. But all of a sudden, Billy Bunny said, "they dear old people say they can't have any trouble if often happens that trouble is just getting ready for them."
Well, those two little rabbits had ridden along for maybe a mile or there when, all of a sudden, just like that, a great big tree fell right across the road, and if Billy Bunny didn't put on the brakes mighty quick, I can't tell you what might have happened. Maybe that tree would have been smashed up into kindling wood in less than a wink, or a blink.
"Oh, dear, and oh, dear again," said Uncle Lucky. "Here's a pretty kettle of fish," which means a peck of trouble, or maybe a bushel. "How are we to get home now, I should like to know."
"I'll tell you what to do," said a voice, and when Uncle Lucky turned his head he saw his old friend, the Scarecrow, in a field of corn.
"Take the corn cobs and lay them over the tree," he said. "Then you can run the Lucky-mobile over all right."
"That's a good idea," said Uncle Lucky, and pretty soon he and the little rabbit had placed four fence rails just like a track over the great trunk of the tree. And after that Uncle Lucky steered the Lucky-mobile very carefully on the rails and over the tree, and then they were happy as happy could be.
"You're the brightest scarecrow I ever knew," said Uncle Lucky, "and I give you a War Saving Stamp." And then away went the two little rabbits, and pretty soon, they came to a bridge.
"Please open the gates and let us pass."
"For we must get home tonight. Please, Mr. Tollman, let us go by, and be very kind and polite."
And in the next story you shall hear who the tollman was and what he said.

A LAST WORD

On the Good Roads Bond Issue to Shopmen, Wage Earners and Home Owners of Janesville and Surrounding Towns.

This is a last word on the subject of good roads before we vote.

The proposition has been stated clearly. Nothing more can be added by way of explanation, except to point out some vital reasons why shopmen, wage earners, and salaried workers of every class—whether owning or renting a home—should not fail to go to the polls tomorrow and vote YES for concrete roads in Rock county.

Coming straight to the point, you ask:

"What good will a concrete road do me? I don't own a car."

Or you may ask:

"Why should I vote to help a bunch of joyriders?"

This last word is to answer these very questions.

And we want you to know that they are being answered—not by the so-called joyrider or automobile owner as such, but by the men—your friends and neighbors—whom you have appointed to look after your highways, and whose duty it is to see that the roads to Janesville are kept up in such shape that milk and produce from the country may be brought to your home or the grocery store where you trade, with as little expense for hauling as possible, in order that your milk and grocery bills may at least be kept from going higher.

When the roads get so bad that milk is fed to hogs (and this happened all over Rock county only a few days ago) because dairy trucks are unable to reach the farms, the farmer is not the only one who loses. Neither does the dealer stand the whole loss when it takes a gallon of gasoline to force his truck over a bad road when a concrete road would require only a half a gallon for the same distance. These losses are shifted all along the line until they reach your kitchen door, and you will find that your share is always tacked on, with somebody else doing the tacking. When you come to look at the road in this light, the interests of the so-called joyriders pale into insignificance compared with your interests.

Now then, these men—your county highway officials—come to you with a plain, straight-forward statement of fact. They tell you frankly that they cannot maintain a gravel surface on our main traveled routes in anything like a dependable condition, and that the cost even for a poor service, will be greater for a given period (and still have poor service) than the cost of concrete roads and have them permanently after they have been paid for.

Your county highway officials are therefore respectfully asking you to cooperate with them as your public servants in voting for the adoption of a plan that will TAKE THE MUD TAX OFF OF YOUR MILK TICKET AND KEEP IT OFF.

So far as the property tax is concerned on the proposed 100-mile system of concrete roads, that will not amount to more than 76 cents a year at the outside on an assessed valuation of $1,000, if we had to dig every cent of it out of our own pockets. But we will not have to do that. In reality, the money borrowed to build concrete roads will stop the waste of funds on gravel roads, and give us the money thus saved to repay principal and interest on the cost of concrete. And the home owner will benefit by the increased values of property that always come with a general public improvement of this character.

There is one other point:

If the proposition at the polls tomorrow should be announced as a proposition to provide $1,500,000 worth of work for laboring men in Rock County, there is not a loyal worker in Janesville who would fail to vote for it. And yet this is precisely what the proposition amounts to from the wage earner's standpoint. Practically all of the capital required in the construction of a concrete road is for labor.

Men, you have the answer----
Concrete Roads mean much to you.
Make it a Point to Vote Tomorrow and vote YES.

REMEMBER!

Janesville's Future Development Is At Stake Tomorrow

Vote the new High School Bonds and assure city's progress.

Your decision, men and women, in the matter of the new High School Bond Issue, will either help or hinder the city's growth.

Pass it and the plans now under way will proceed; defeat it and present plans will be altered.

The New High School Bond Issue To Be Voted Upon Tomorrow Is the Most Important Question That Has Ever Come To Your Attention.

Women--Mothers--You May Vote

Cities are made of men and women--Are flesh and blood communities--First--The General Motor's Corporation, the great organization that is making possible the greater city we are to know, believes proper school facilities as necessary as building houses.

If Janesville is to be developed along lines that are sound; if the new population we are to have is to be on a par with our standard, we must do our part tomorrow.

The proper kind of workmen cannot be secured to operate the plant that is going to develop Janesville from a small city to a metropolis if school facilities are not adequate.

It will be considered a calamity if the issue should fail of passage.

Because of the spirit manifest in Janesville the world outside has directed its attention to Janesville. Shall we lose this prestige so won?

Everybody agrees we need a new High School--no one disputes that fact. Failure to pass the Bond Issue at this time will block the city's growth. Have you thought of that?

This is your city--your home town--you are proud to live here--you wish Janesville to grow--you must realize our chance is here--defeat the Bond Issue and growth must stop--new residents will not stay even if they do come.

Houses and jobs are useless if the children are without proper school accommodation. Think--Think--Think--Then act and get your neighbor and his wife to act.

We are counting on you to maintain the proud position Janesville now occupies in the estimation of others and yourself.

IN THE INTEREST OF A GREATER CITY
